

THE SAUGANASH CORONACLE

MARCH 16TH 2020 ISSUE#2

INVESTING DURING THE CORONAPOCALYPSE

By Thomas Athey

In the last month, the S&P 500, a stock market index that measures the stock performance of 500 large companies listed on stock exchanges in the United States, has lost 25% of its value. Three times in the last week we have seen trading halts - a temporary suspension of trading due to a 7% drop in the S&P 500. The coronavirus has officially driven us into a bear market (when the market is in decline; opposite of a bull market) - something we haven't seen since the 2008 financial crisis. This surely is due to coronavirus but there is also a strong possibility that time has come for the markets to have some pullback... markets have been climbing and reaching new records for 11 years.

Through all the current pandemonium, investors should be seeing this as an opportunity; if toilet paper went on sale, would you be mad? No, you would rush to your nearest store and buy as much as you can. I recommend the same for the S&P 500. The S&P, which is essentially buying a piece of the entire U.S. economy, has never failed - if one tracked it going back 90 years you would find it is up over 1000% to this day. Through highs and lows, our United States economy always continues to prosper and buying into the S&P 500 is buying into this economy.

Movie Discussion

If nothing else, we can at least learn a very important lesson from the coronavirus pandemic: humans were made to live in paradise on earth, aka Arizona.

John Nicholls, a pathology professor at the University of Hong Kong recently said that two things that coronavirus can't handle are sunlight and heat. "The virus can remain intact at 39 degrees or 50 degrees for a longer period of time," Nicholls said. "But at 86 degrees F, then you get inactivation."

In Tucson, AZ, there is an average of 3,852 hours of sunlight per year (of a possible 4,383) with an average of 10:32 of sunlight per day. That means it is sunny 87.9% of daylight hours. The average annual temperature in Tucson is 84 degrees. On average there are 209 days a year over 80 degrees. Based on average high temperatures each month, coronavirus would be inactive from April through October.

Just sayin...

TOP 10 IDEAS FOR THE LOCKDOWN

By Justin Reckart

When I talked to some of you last week, there were a few people who were excited about the possibility of a school closure. But after just a few days, I know some people are already finding quarantine not exactly as exciting as it might have initially sounded.

Although there are no sports to watch, no restaurants to visit, and limited possibilities of hanging out with your friends, there are actually a lot of pretty cool things you can do while you're in quarantine. Here are the top 10 that I came up with. Choose one that you want to try to do this week.

- 1. Learn to cook. All the restaurants in Illinois are now closed and it's only a matter of time before you get sick of ramen, PB&J, and cereal. Try one of these easy recipes each week to get a little variety (and some actual nutrition) in your diet.
- 2. Make a work of art. You can make a movie, choose one of these projects to draw, or write a short story.
- 3. Start investing. As you already saw on the front page, now may be an ideal time to start an investment portfolio. But watch out, it's easy to lose your money if you don't know what you're doing. Start teaching yourself about investing here and test out some ideas on a virtual trading platform.
- 4. Make your own board game. Thousands of new board games are created and sold through Kickstarter (for more than $1 billion over the last 10 years). Many of those games started out as creations in people's homes. Try creating a board game with your siblings and friends and once you work out the problems, launch it on Kickstarter.
- 5. Read a book. Among many other benefits of being a man who reads, this study found that the more you read (non-school books), the higher your future earning potential. Choose a book to read each week from this reading list.
- 6. Workout. Your sports practices may be cancelled, but you can still stay in shape. Come up with a routine that you can do at home here.
- 7. Learn to program. Try one of these Code Academy classes, or learn how Pixar animates, or how the Disney Imagineers build theme parks.
- 8. Start a business. The first step to starting a business is finding a need you can solve. Right now there are a lot of people with needs that you may be able to solve.
- 9. Go to Mass. You may not be able to attend Mass in-person, but you can actually attend Mass with the Pope every day here.
- 10. Host a virtual party. You may not be able to have your friends over to your house, but you can have them over and do something together through Google Hangouts. Some people have even been playing Mafia and Diplomacy from a distance.
